S. Bellemin-Laponnaz is a CNRS research director at the Institut de Physique et Chimie des Matériaux de Strasbourg, France. He studied at the Université Joseph Fourier (Grenoble), the University of Strasbourg and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (USA). His research interests are in the field of organometallic chemistry and coordination chemistry, with a focus on applications such as -asymmetric-catalysis, bioinorganic chemistry or materials science. He was awarded the Bronze Medal of the CNRS in 2005, the Coordination Chemistry Prize of the Société Chimique de France in 2009 and the Sandmeyer Prize of the Swiss Chemical Society in 2013. He is currently president of the Coordination Chemistry Division of the French Chemical Society and member of the scientific advisory board of the company Ineo Tech.
